Multimodal Performance of Augmented Reality (AR) art gallery with music composed on paintings by Irish symbolist artist Jack B. Yeats based on the psychogeography of places where Yeats took inspiration for his paintings while living in Dublin. Also, you will hear music by Chopin, Scriabin and Rachmaninov painted by artist synaesthetes.

Many of Jack B. Yeats (1871-1957) paintings were inspired by Dublin people and locations, such as “The Liffey Swim” and “Flower Girl, Dublin.” Jack B. Yeats: Psychogeography is a novel locative art/music experience for smartphones. Augmented Reality (AR) is a cutting-edge technology augmenting real-world locations with music and art. In this concert, you will hear original compositions from the app and compositions by Chopin, Scriabin and Rachmaninov painted by artist synaesthetes (Syneasesthesia Gallery AR, BAW FENS Award 2022).

Pianist Dr Svetlana Rudenko, review: John Field Room, National Concert Hall. ‘...a power-packed account of Liszt’s supreme Sonata in B minor that revealed no inhibiting concerns for the practicable or even the physically possible.’ Andrew Johnston (Irish Times, Tuesday October 27, 2009)

Talk/narrative by Prof. Mads Haahr, Trinity College Dublin.
